Kirstin Lobato Attacked By Mass Murderer At Woman's Prison

The Las Vegas Tribune's lead article on the front page of its February 22, 2017 issue is, "Kirstin Lobato Attacked By Serial Killer At Woman's Prison." The article was written by Hans Sherrer, Justice Denied's editor and publisher. The article can be read on the LV Tribune's website at, LasVegasTribune.net.

The article details that on the night of February 10, 2017 serial killer Valerie Moore attacked Kirstin Blaise Lobato with a deadly weapon at the Florence McClure Women's Correctional Center (FMWCC) in North Las Vegas. Lobato was able to defend herself from being seriously injured until guards arrived to subddue Moore. Moore has been convicted of 13 murders, and she is serving life in prison without the possibility of parole. Moore is believed to be the most prolific female mass murderer imprisoned in the United States, and one of the most prolific in American history.

Lobato has unwaveringly insisted on her innocence of her 2006 convictions of voluntary manslaughter and other charges related to the death of a homeless man in Las Vegas in 2001. She was sentenced to 13 to 35 years in prison.

Justice Denied's post-conviction investigation of Lobato's case discovered new scientific and medical evidence proving she was 165 miles from Las Vegas at the time of the crime. In December 2016 the Supreme Court sent her case back to the District Court for an evidentiary hearing regarding ineffective assistance of counsel by the Clark County Special Public Defenders Office during her trial, and to resolve her habeas corpus claim of being actually innocent.

Kirstin Lobato Attacked By Serial Killer

By Hans Sherrer

Justice Denied (justicedenied.org) Special for the Las Vegas Tribune

At Woman's Prison

Serial killer Valerie Moore attacked Kirstin Blaise Lobato with a deadly weapon on February 10, 2017 at the Florence McClure Women's Correctional Center (FMWCC) in North Las Vegas.

The Las Vegas Tribune has published many articles concerning the legal saga of Kirstin Lobato. For more than ten years her case has been batted back and forth between the Clark County District Court and the Nevada Supreme Court.

In 2006 Lobato was sentenced to 13 to 35 years in prison for her convictions of voluntary manslaughter and other charges related to the death of a homeless man in Las Vegas in 2001. Lobato has unwavering insisted on her innocence, and new scientific and medical evidence has been discovered proving she was 165 miles from Las Vegas at the time of the crime. In December 2016 the Supreme Court sent her case back to the District Court for an evidentiary hearing regarding ineffective assistance of counsel by the Clark County Special Public Defenders Office during her trial, and to resolve her habeas corpus claim of being actually innocent.

Lobato's case has garnered international attention, and the Innocence Project in New York recently agreed to represent Lobato pro bono in her habeas corpus case. The Innocence Project has been involved in exonerating more than a hundred innocent people nationally.

On the evening of February 10th Moore launched an unprovoked vicious attack on Lobato with one of the most dangerous weapons readily available to her: a sock full of batteries that Moore was able to sling to increase its destructive power.

Moore beat Lobato on the head and upper body before Lobato was able to neutralize Moore by putting her in a choke-hold. Moore chewed on Lobato's arm in an effort to free herself. When guards arrived, they pepper sprayed both Moore and Lobato, and subdued Moore.

Lobato suffered an injury to her head, and wounds to her arm from Moore biting her.

Guards put Moore and Lobato in disciplinary segregation pending an investigation.

The Nevada Department of Corrections in Carson City did not provide any comment when contacted by Justice Denied about Moore's assault of Lobato, and attempts to contact FMWCC Warden Dwight Neven for comment about Moore's assault were unsuccessful.

nied. Perla Hernandez said the IG's office had not been notified by FMWCC about Moore's assault. Hernandez took details of the incident and said she would forward them to the appropriate person in the IG's office for investigation.

The Clark County District Attorney's Office did not comment when contacted by phone, and has not responded to an email from Justice Denied inquiring if the DA's Office will be involved in the investigation and prosecution of Moore's pre-meditated criminal acts in assaulting Lobato. Assault with a deadly weapon and attempted murder are among the crimes Moore could be charged with.

The attack on Lobato raises questions about the Nevada DOC's prisoner classification and confinement policy. The DOC appears to be disregarding that Moore, 57, has a thirty-year history of engaging in fits of uncontrolled violent and deadly behavior. Moore is a serial killer responsible for the deaths of 13 people.

Moore is currently serving 12 life sentences without the possibility of parole plus 15 years. She was convicted in January 2007 of 12 counts of first-degree murder and one count of first-degree arson for setting the October 31, 2006 fire at the Mizpah Hotel in Reno. Moore lived at the Mizpah, that was primarily an inexpensive residential hotel where rooms rented for $150 a week. On Halloween night Moore argued with a male tenant and threatened him, "You will be gotten." Two hours later Moore started a mattress on fire outside the man's door. A tenant in the hotel said Moore "just flipped."

The Mizpah had no fire sprinkler system, and the 84-year-old three-story building was quickly engulfed in flames. People trapped in their rooms jumped from upper floor windows. Twelve people died, all from smoke inhalation, and 31 were injured.

At the time she started the fire Moore was on parole for her 1987 conviction of seconddegree murder with a deadly weapon. Moore was one of three women involved in the February 27, 1987 murder of Kathleen Kennedy in Reno. Kennedy's death resulted from an argument about money and rebuffing Moore's sexual advances. Moore struck Kennedy in the head with a rock and stomped on her. A codefendant testified that Moore said about Kennedy when she was near death, "You might as well kill the bitch."

Moore was convicted by a jury in September 1987 and sentenced to life in prison with the possibility of parole.

While imprisoned Moore was implicated in a heroin smuggling ring at the Southern Nevada Women's Prison (now known as the FMWCC). A prison guard was arrested in September 2003 for trying to smuggle heroin hidden in her bra to Moore. The guard, Constance Edwards, was paid $50 to $200 per trip by Moore's ex-cellmate. Karen Matthews, to smuggle the drugs to Moore. Edwards also smuggled other items to Moore that weren't available in the commissary. At the time of her arrest Edwards had been smuggling drugs and other goods to Moore for about a year.

Moore was disciplined for her role in the heroin smuggling operation, but it didn't interfere with her release on parole in June 2005.

Sixteen months after Moore's parole she started the deadly fire in a fit of rage. To avoid the death penalty she pled guilty to the 12 murders she committed at the Mizpah. Her sentence bars her from ever being released back into society.

Around eight months ago the NDOC moved Moore into a cell with Lobato.

Confidential sources report that at least once a week Moore "goes crazy" and runs screaming and yelling through the pod she is housed in. It is reported that Lobato has been seen trying to calm Moore down during her intense manic episodes. It is also reported that Moore is not in counseling or on any medication to control her mental instability.

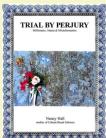

Evidence is readily available to prison authorities that Moore is mentally unstable and an unpredictable threat to the safety of women prisoners at FMWCC. The investigation of Moore's assault on Lobato could be expanded to include an investigation of the culpability of prison officials in failing to fulfill their important responsibility to protect Lobato and the other women at FM-WCC, from Moore.

Trial by Perjury: Millionaire, Mania & Misinformation

by Nancy Hall

This $3.99 Amazon Kindle e-book book is about how Celeste Beard Johnson was convicted in 2003 of capital murder in the death of her then husband Steven F. Beard, who died of natural causes in 2000. She was sentenced to life in prison.

While in bed at home in Oct. 1999, Steven was shot in his stomach with a shotgun. Tracey Tarlton, a woman who became infatuated with Celeste after they met in February 1999, admitted the shooting and she was charged with Injury to an Elderly Person. Steven recovered and was discharged from the hospital on January 18, 2000. The next day he was readmitted with a yeast infection and he complained of chest pains. Exams showed he had severe heart disease and other medical problems. He died four days later. Tarlton and Celeste were charged with murdering Steven. Tarlton pled guilty and agreed to testify against Celeste in exchange for a 10-20 year prison sentence. Celeste was convicted even though medical evidence showed Steven died of natural causes - not murder. Order for the Amazon Kindle for only $3.99 from Amazon.com. (252 pgs)
